

Information Webinar on Salmonella Control

Tuesday 9th of November at 7.00pm

The National Salmonella Control Programme is being revised and Animal Health Ireland together with our stakeholders including Teagasc and the IFA are jointly holding an information webinar to raise awareness about controlling Salmonella.

The webinar will provide a background to the reasons why controlling Salmonella is so important for the pig industry and will discuss some of the initiatives to help farmers control it. There will be an opportunity for farmers to ask questions of our panel.

CHAIR

Roy Gallie, IFA National Pig Committee Chair.

SPEAKERS

Dr Patrick Wall, Professor of Public Health in University College Dublin. Dr Wall with his experience in public health as a backdrop, will give a background to the importance of controlling Salmonella.

Dr Carla Gomes, Pig HealthCheck Programme Manager, Animal Health Ireland will explain the initiatives coming in the New Year plus give an update on the Pig HealthCheck programme.

Harry van Veen from Saxony-Anhalt who runs a large farming business with his brother in Eastern Germany will detail his journey in Salmonella control on their farm.
